

Contents

List of Figures vii

List of Tables x

Introduction 1

Dennis B. Blanton and Julia A. King

1. The Climate Factor in Late Prehistoric and Post-Contact Human Affairs 6

Dennis B. Blanton

2. Reconnecting the Contact Period and Late Prehistory: Household and Community Dynamics in the James River Basin 22

Martin D. Gullivan

3. Analytical Scale and Archaeological Perspectives on the Contact Era in the Northern Neck of Virginia 47

Michael J. Klein and Douglas W. Sanford

4. The Chesapeake Hinterlands: Contact-Period Archaeology in the Upper Potomac Valley 74

Robert D. Wall

5. “The Country here is very thick of Indian Towns and Plantations . . .”: Tuscarora Settlement Patterns as Revealed by the Contentnea Creek Survey 98

John E. Byrd and Charles L. Heath

6. Exchange and Violence at Ajacan, Roanoke, and Jamestown 126
Seth W. Mallios
 7. Evolutionary Archaeology and the Contact Period: A Case Study from Virginia and North Carolina 149
Clifford Boyd
 8. “Their Complement of Deer-Skins and Furs”: Changing Patterns of White-Tailed Deer Exploitation in the Seventeenth-Century Southern Chesapeake and Virginia Hinterlands 172
Heather A. Lapham
 9. Did the Chesapeake English Have a Contact Period? 193
Julia A. King and Edward E. Chaney
 10. Last Refuge: Tribal Preserves in Eastern Virginia 222
Martha W. McCartney
 11. The Colonoware Question and the Indian Bowl Trade in Colonial Somerset County, Maryland 244
Thomas E. Davidson
 12. “The Foundation of All Other Greate Works”: The Strange Career of the 1634 Middle Plantation Palisade 265
Philip Levy
- References Cited 289
- Contributors 341
- Index 343